DETAILED ACTION

Upon further consideration, the final office action mailed on August 07, 2006 is vacated. A new rejection follows.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Eckman (US Patent Number 6,726,690).

Eckman discloses a various embodiments of an enucleation device comprising a proximal end, a distal end comprising a cutting cap, e.g. 23, comprising a plurality of deformable blades, 26, and a flexible shaft, e.g. 18, between the proximal end and the cutting cap, wherein the shaft comprises an axial guidewire lumen between the proximal end and the distal end, where the plurality of deformable blades can cut material in a space when the blades not deformed, i.e. the blades are partially retracted, after accessing the space through a passage while the blades are deformed and where the passage has a smaller cross-sectional area than the lateral cross-sectional area of the undeformed blades while the blades are cutting the material (see figures 1-7, column 5, lines 15-26 and column 8, lines 28-39),

With regard to the statement of intended use and other functional statements, e.g. where the plurality of deformable blades can cut material in a space when the blades not deformed, after accessing the space through a passage while the blades are deformed, they do not impose any structural limitations on the claims distinguishable over Eckman, which is capable of being used as claimed if one so desires to do so. In re Casey, 152 USPQ 235 (CCPA 1967) and In re Otto, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963). Furthermore, the law of anticipation does not require that the reference “teach” what the subject patent teaches, but rather it is only necessary that the claims under attack “read on” something in the reference. Kalman v. Kimberly Clark Corp., 218 USPQ 781 (CCPA 1983). Furthermore, the manner in which a device is intended to be employed does not differentiate the claimed apparatus from prior art apparatus satisfying the claimed structural limitations. Ex parte Masham, 2 USPQ2d 1647 (1987).

Eckman discloses a method of cutting material in a space, comprising providing the enucleation device of claim 1, accessing the space with the device, actuating the device, thereby effecting cutting of the material, deforming the blades before actuating the device, and accessing the space through a passage while the blades are deformed, where the passage has a smaller cross-sectional area than the lateral cross-sectional area of the undeformed blades while the blades are cutting the material, where the passage is curved, wherein advancing and retracting the cutting device in the space to cut additional material, where accessing the space comprises advancing the cutting device over a guide wire, e.g. 21, where the material cut is selected from the group consisting of intervertebral disk and vertebral body endplate material, where accessing the space comprises advancing the device through a transpedicular access passage in a vertebra (see column 5, lines 15-26 and column 9, lines 5-64).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-17 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See PTO 892 for art cited of interest.
